

The main focus of the private lessons is musical theory and how it applies to the instrument. All the while trying to remain fun. Therefore, the musical style/genre that the student is seeking is irrelevant. At Dennis O'Toole Guitar Instruction the goal is for the student to have an understanding of the music that they seek to learn and become an independent musician. Since it's inception in 1995, Dennis has helped thousands of players from around the world learn guitar theory.

The guitar course covers entry-level through advanced students. Picking techniques, tablature and sheet music explanation, chord theory, scales and modes (using the Greek Mode System) are just a few of the subjects covered.

The drum course is designed for entry-level students. The course covers the basics from holding sticks to playing a full kit. The theory, which is focused on, is rudiments. The 40 rudiments that are taught cover everything from a single stroke roll to a triple ratamaque.

The bass course is for entry-level through intermediate level students. The course covers basic picking techniques, tablature and sheet music explanation, scales and modes (using the Greek Mode System).
